TRANSPORTATION/LOGISTICS

Many organizations that place high value on logistics and distribution choose to locate in Middle Tennessee due to our transportation infrastructure (roads, rail systems, interstates, and airports) and proximity to a major portion of the U.S. population . . . Fifty percent of the U.S. population lives within 600 miles of Nashville. Tennessee has 1,105 miles of interstate system. Nashville is one of only four U.S. cities to have six legs of interstates converging within its limits . . . Nashville is served by two short-line railroads and a Class I Carrier offering rail service that connects the Nashville area to the nation's marketplace . . . Middle Tennessee's waterways maintain a vital role in the area's economy and livability. At almost 700 miles in length, the Cumberland River plays a central role in meeting Nashville's transportation needs. One commercial and 10 general aviation airports serve the Middle Tennessee market.
